Professional Judgement for Special Circumstances	Examples of special circumstances that MAY be considered			To be considered, students must submit a written request and explanation of the circumstance that may warrant a change in COA or expenses, which includes providing the required documentation to support the request.
Financial Aid administrators must review all PJ requests for special circumstances. Even if the adjustment does not change the student's COA or elements of their fees. FAA may use their discretion to approve or deny a PJ request. All decisions are final. PJ requests for special circumstances must be submitted as needed. They will not be granted as a "blanket" administrative action.	Change in employment status, income, or assets. Change in housing status. Medical, Dental or Nursing home expenses not covered by insurance. Child or Dependent care expenses. Tuition expenses at elementary or secondary school. Severe disability of student or dependent not covered by insurance. Other changes that impact a student's ability to pay for college.			The information provided will be used to determine the eligibility for an adjustment to a student's Cost of Attendance and related expenses. Documentation may include: receipts, cancelled check, invoice, medical billing statement, notes taken during an interview with student and financial aid advisor, or other appropriate means to make an informed decision.
